Innovation is a big buzzword that means different things to different people. Where do innovative and revolutionary business ideas come from? According to research by Hal Gregersen, co-author of The Innovator's DNA and executive director of the MIT Leadership Center, mastering five key skills forms the foundation for finding ideas that create value. Phil Budden, senior lecturer in MIT Sloan's TIES (Technological Innovation, Entrepreneurship and Strategic-management) Group, also provides his expertise on how to foster innovation within your organization and nurture an innovation ecosystem. This business innovation course helps executives learn to achieve breakthrough insights through self-assessment, catalytic questioning, deep observation, diverse networking, and rapid experimentation through various breakout sessions.
